Restorative Practices at Silverdale School

Me ata tirohia ki te kate

The problem is the problem, the person is not the problem

At Silverdale School we are using restorative practices/approaches as alternatives to more punitive disciplinary systems and procedures where often there have been little or no links between wrongdoers and those they have harmed, nor any real connections between the punishment and the actual offence.

The essence of restorative practices is simple: that all people are happier, more productive and more likely to make positive changes in their behaviour when those in positions of authority do things with them, rather than to them or for them. Building, enhancing and restoring relationships across any workplace, community group, school or culture, is absolutely essential for a strongly connected, empathetic, functioning society.

We feel that our previous measures we used, often fail to meet the relational needs of teaching and learning in the 21st century. We are finding restorative practices/approaches are more effective in establishing long term lasting changes in relationships, more connecting of the members of a school community and more involving and hearing of victims.

Punitive versus Restorative Responses

Punitive Responses – focus on punishment.	Restorative Responses – focus on accountability, healing and needs.
What rule has been broken?	What happened?
Who is to blame?	Who has been affected? How?
What is the punishment going to be?	What needs to be done to put things right?
	What do we need to do to move forward?

Restorative practices/approaches are based on the idea that the best way to help someone who has done wrong is to give them the opportunity to put things right.

As a staff we are using restorative conversations when dealing with challenging behaviour you can also apply this at home.

Tell the Story

- Tell me what happened?
- What has led to us needing this conversation?
- What were you thinking when you did that?
- What have you thought about since?
- How does that fit with our values here?

Explore the Harm

- Who do you think has been affected? Who else?
- In what ways?
- What do you think it must have been like for them?
- What that a fair or unfair thing to do? The right or the wrong thing to do?

Repair the Harm

- What needs to happen to put things right?
- What do you think_____ needs to hear/see from you now?
- Is there anything else that you can think of that might help?
- What will sorry look like in action from here?

Reach an Agreement

- What do you need to stop doing, stay doing, start doing?
- If this happens again - what could/would you do differently?
- From now on how will you show the school/home values?
- What do you need from me/us to support you?

Plan Follow Up

- When shall we check in with you to see how you're going?
- What will happen if our agreed outcomes haven't been reached?

PTA fundraiser - Readathon

A FREE COMMUNITY TALK THE JOURNEY AHEAD - RAISING A NEURODIVERGENT CHILD

FROM THE TEAM AT NEUROLINKS GROWTH CENTRE
7PM TUESDAY 16TH JUNE

Raising a neurodivergent child is a long game. The understanding needed to support your child, and the self-awareness to manage yourself through the journey, are skills most parents learn as they go and keep re-learning during their child's lifetime. It's a journey that can test our limits but one that can also teach us and our children great wisdom.

This talk is an honest, hopeful conversation for parents who want to explore what it takes to show up for their kids over the long haul. Presented by our certified coaches, Esther and Anne, together we'll unpack how to build the kind of sustainable resilience that keeps you in the game when things get messy and helps nurture the self-compassion required for the days when the wheels fall off.

DETAILS

Join us for an hour of relaxed connection and conversation at our new home.
